Q: pandas : conditional sum values based on two columns I'm trying to perform a conditional sum where I only want to keep the values where the row is negative but if positive, I want the value to be negative too. I have done this in excel quite easily, by taking the max of the column and then setting it to zero if the value is positive and giving it a negative sign to the max value if the value is negative. In pandas, I have tried using where: df = df.where(df.intval
