Top 10 Baby Names for 2018 Baby names come in waves and at varying levels of popularity. With the rise of the internet and social media, it can feel like the trends are going both faster and further out of reach, making it hard for parents to keep up with the latest trends in their children's name choices. Baby name trends for 2018 have been showing a generally positive change, but they've still been dominated by the year's biggest names:

Olivia, Ava, Noah and Elijah. In fact, these four names have been appearing on the top ten babies' names list for every year since 2000, and this year, they're set to replace the duo that holds this spot: Sophie and Emma. 'Olivia' and 'Ava' have also been on the list every year since 2006, so it's no surprise that they're still on the list. The third most popular name on this year's list is a name that many may be unfamiliar with – Noah has only been on the list a handful of times since 1999, but it's taking up a space on the 2018 list for the first time. However, the trend for Noah is changing – it's popularity is slowly growing. The hope is that 2019 will bring a name that will replace the Noah's of this world. But until then, here are the top ten most popular names for 2018. 1. Olivia The popularity of the name Olivia is down in recent years. Since 2000, there have been only four years when Olivia was the most popular baby name, but last year the name only managed a place on the list for the first time since 2007. But the trend of Olivia's popularity seems to be holding steady this year, and it's showing no signs of losing its spot at the top of the list. 2. Noah Noah is getting more popular – even if it's not necessarily as popular as some of the names on the list. It's only been on the list a few times since 1999 – and a lot of those occurrences have been in the past ten years. If the trend continues, however, Noah may be showing some growth. 3. Ava Ava is maintaining its spot as the third most popular name, but there's been a change in the character of Ava
