Democratic Sens. Tammy Baldwin and Russ Feingold and Republican Sen. Ron Johnson on Thursday introduced a bill that would change the date for the state's presidential preference primary from April to June. The bill would also give Wisconsinites the opportunity to vote in all primary elections, regardless of whether the presidential candidates are participating. Current law dictates that if the nominees for major party candidates are not selected by party delegates in the spring, the presidential preference primary is held in April. It's an April election that could decide who will head into the general election with the most momentum. Sen. Baldwin, D-Wisconsin, ca3bfb1094

Example: I walked down my road and stood in front of my house and looked over to my neighbor's house, who was sitting on his front porch. I noticed my neighbor was eating a sandwich and drinking a can of beer. I said to him "no one wants to come back" when I was a boy. I'm wondering what "no one wants to come back" means in this sentence? A: I went to look up the word "no one" in the Oxford Learner's Dictionaries (a.k.a. OLD). I found the definition of the word "someone" at OLD and the definition of the word "one" at OLD. The definitions I found for "one" were, "A single person, animal, or thing" and "An individual" (the definition for "one" isn't very specific). "No one" means "Not one person, animal, or thing". So the sentence in question means: Not one person wants to come back when I was a boy. I think it makes sense to say that you were the one that wanted to come back. As noted in the comments, there is a slightly different meaning for "no one wants to come back". This has to do with the idea of someone who is not going to be around in the future. No one is going to come back. This means that no one who was a resident of the place in the past is going to be a resident of the place in the future. It sounds like your neighbor is not going to be a resident of the place in the future.

What's New in the AutoCAD?

AutoCAD Video: How to Draw a Rectangle (video: 2:35 min.) A slightly newer feature, the ability to draw rectangles is already a major component of many design tasks. The easier and more accurate way to create rectangles in AutoCAD is by using "objects" - specially designed types of drawing objects that are generally considered to be much faster and easier to use than regular drawing commands. As shown in this video, creating a rectangle is as easy as drawing any other object. At the end of the video, you will see some cool one-click shortcuts for creating rectangles and for creating custom shape objects that can be used to create rectangles. Another minor new feature is the ability to import the classic "thematic" shape files (.mtl files) found in many image files. The MTL files are a special kind of file, and they store the drawing properties as an ASCII file, allowing you to easily share designs. The new AutoCAD 360 lens line rendering is in this new version. This new visual effect is modeled after the real-life lens effect of regular cameras, allowing you to create a more realistic look for your drawings. AutoCAD The printing feature now supports AutoLISP scripting, allowing you to program new, unique ways to process your print job. You can also output to some newer file formats, such as PDF. Export to AutoCAD Map 3D formats are now also supported - no more switching back and forth between layers in your drawing. The new version of AutoCAD also supports some new drawing commands. While many of the new commands are designed to be used in conjunction with the new AutoLISP support, some of them can be used without it. New AutoLISP Commands: New AutoLISP commands included in AutoCAD 2023 include: a2e - add new entities (programmed functions) addnewlayer - add a new layer cloneshapes - clone any entity d2e - delete entities doclone - delete an entity and create a new one exportlist - export a list of entities findstartandend - finds the start and end of the selected object findmarks - find all marks in the selected object findselected - find all entities that are selected findselectedobject -
