Established in the late 1960s, Nippon Ichi Software Co., Ltd. had released the first action RPG (Agni's Philosophy) on the Famicom. The company released many more titles until the late 1980s. From the early to mid-2000s, Nippon Ichi Software Ltd. released several JRPGs for the Game Boy Advance. In 2010, Nippon Ichi Software Co., Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as NIS America, Inc.) was established in North America, and after that it released more than 20 titles, including the Armored Core series and the GBA game spinoff Sudekugurenta). By 2011, NIS America, Inc. acquired the rights of Nippon Ichi Software Co., Ltd. from Nippon Ichi Software, and from then on NIS America, Inc. released their own games in North America. Since 2015, other than the North America, NIS America, Inc. has also released a large number of titles on the PlayStation 4 and Nintendo Switch platforms. ----- Table of Contents ----- [Contents] - NIS America, Inc. - The Original Action RPG Studio of the Land of Elves - Story and Characters - System - Combat - Inventory Management - Upgrade - Skills - Cards [Contents] ----- User Guide ----- [Contents] - Introduction - NIS America, Inc. - The Original Action RPG Studio of the Land of Elves - Story and Characters - System - Combat - Inventory Management - Upgrade - Skills - Cards [Contents] ----- [Contents] - Introduction - Story and Characters - System - Combat - Inventory Management - Upgrade - Skills - Cards [Contents] ----- [Contents] - Introduction - Story and Characters - System - Combat - Inventory Management - Upgrade - Skills - Cards [Contents] ----- [Contents] - Introduction - Story and Characters - System - Combat - Inventory Management - Upgrade - Skills - Cards [Contents] ----- [Contents] - Introduction - Story and Characters - System - Combat - Inventory Management - Upgrade - Skills - Cards [Contents] ----- [Contents] - Introduction - Story and Characters - System

Q: Return of array of pointers to dynamically allocated objects I am trying to get familiar with pointers to objects created dynamically. The task is to fill a vector with pointers to objects, which are created dynamically using new. The dynamically created object looks like this: `class myClass { public: myClass(); int a; }; myClass::myClass() { this->a = 5; }` Everything is working fine as long as I don't try to get dynamically created array of objects. `class A { public: A(); myClass *arr; A(int a, int b) { this->arr = new myClass[a]; for(int i = 0; i < arr->size(); i++) arr[i] = new myClass(i); }`

Elden Ring [Mac/Win]

START: You have just defeated the evil Nu-taku and the defender of the Legendary Gear, Altea, in the last battle. Alas, you found out that your friends have been kidnapped by the Nu-taku. What will you do now? The location is the Labyrinth of the Children of Dream, the children that the Nu-taku kidnapped to control their dreams and use them to awaken the Legendary Gear. To save the kidnapped friends and clear the Labyrinth, you must ask someone to retrieve the Legendary Gear. The same Labyrinth is the starting point of the first stage of the game. In this TRS-80 version, you will be teleported to the Labyrinth of the Children of Dream and fight monsters. The Labyrinth is a 3D dungeon full of many dangerous monsters. You fight monsters with weapons you've acquired or equipped. You have two types of weapons: weapons you're equipped with, and weapons that you have obtained. Use your equipped weapons as much as possible. There are powerful weapons that fulfill certain functions and can be used even after you've obtained them. Some enemies resist your attack. If you use them when your character is low on health, you'll be able to inflict damage upon them. You can collect weapons while in your inventory. Some enemies inflict statuses and statuses can be used to increase your HP, MP, or attack damage. Afterward, the items you've collected are used up, so you'll need to attack an enemy. The space between you and the next enemy is your attack range. You can grab items with a higher level than yours and carry them. You can store up to five items in your inventory. Press B to switch to your inventory and show the items. If you want to equip an item to another weapon, move the item and press B again. If you want to equip an item to your character, move the item and press A. You can equip items at a weapon, by using "Equip" in your inventory. You can equip a higher-level item to another weapon or you can equip a weapon to your character. You can equip a weapon with different mods. If you do, you can add enhanced effects to the weapon. You can raise your attack power by equipping a weapon with enhanced effects.
