1. Double click ELDEN RING icon to decompress it and install it 2. If you want to play online, you may go to "Options" and turn on "Steam Networking" 3. Select "mods" from the mod menu, then click on "download new" 4. Select "Extract the content" from the file list 5. Enjoy! The watch is from the Breurehir series and this is the final piece. I like it because it symbolizes the rise of the Elden and their fall, as well as the first dust to settle. The main reason I created this watch is to show a close up of the moon's impact on the diamond and to have a better look of the alloy and design. I did a really good work on the moon, as well as the moon's polished surface. The detail on the moon and overall look of the watch are really nice. It would be perfect if I had refined the details of the moon further. For example, the smaller moon has the same appearance as the larger moon, so it is hard to understand that the small moon is the target of the impact. Maybe there would be a design similar to the moon's scale that is why it looks the same. I hope you guys like it! The present invention is broadly concerned with a steam cooking system having a conical or other shape cooking vessel for containing cooking utensils such as pots or pans. More particularly, the invention is directed toward the automatic switching control of cooking apparatus to conform to the shape or size of a cooking vessel utilized. It is generally desirable to adapt mechanical apparatus to be suitable for user's customizations. This makes the apparatus more efficiently stored, requires less space for storage and handling, and makes the apparatus much less expensive than if it had to be designed for a predetermined range of potential shapes and sizes. A good example of an appliance that requires such special adaptation is a "deep fryer"--a non-stick vessel for holding food items to be cooked or baked. Because the inlet oil of a "deep fryer" should not be too hot (so as not to scald a diner, for example), the vessel is provided with a valve, e.g., a Scotch-type swing-poppet valve, positioned so as to leave a predetermined amount of free space between the inlet valves of the skillet or pot and the opening of the "deep fryer". The amount of free space is determined by safety standards. Specifically, during venting of the fryer, the opening of the fryer must remain free of cooking oil in this space. The total capacity of the fryer is a function of the size and shape of the fryer's "scoop" such that the cooking capacity of the fryer is suitable for cooking, for example, cakes or fish "batons" having diameters between {fraction (1/8)} and {fraction (5/8)}. However, if such fryers are used on a regular basis, the vessels may become so hot to human touch that they are "burned" or singed. Such burn marks can be scrubbed away, but excess cooking oil spoils the appearance of the vessel. It is therefore desirable, if not necessary, to provide an automatic switching apparatus for automatically removing cooking oil from the vessel when it is not in use and bringing cooking oil to the vessel when it is being used. Moreover, such an apparatus must be relatively inexpensive and ideally operable while the vessel is in use,
