HyperMotion Technology provides authentic transitions between plays, making it easier to execute techniques and produce more effective passes, balls and shots. More than 1,500 different animations are now powered by the technology, including most passes, dribbles and crosses, as well as multiple types of passes and shots. The new “Unlimited Maneuvers” feature will also be available to players in FIFA 22. This mode allows players to control the goalkeeper in a free-roam match with no restrictions on where they can move. Players can set up crosses, pounce on a loose ball, make long passes or shoot, before passing to an open teammate on the opposite flank. The goal, in this mode, is to score an unstoppable goal. “Players love to take risks when they’re surrounded by high-quality opposition,” said David Rutter, Creative Director at EA SPORTS. “HyperMotion Technology and the ‘Unlimited Maneuvers’ feature provide a better experience for them and also give the defenders a whole new way to play.” Each feature in FIFA 22 is set to open the door to the next level of play.
