Don't Panic: How Not to Lose Yours Posted August 20, 2017 It's not good for you, your mental health and your waistline. It's not even good for your mortgage. Losing weight is tough, but it doesn't have to be boring, monotonous and untenable. It's not that hard as long as you approach it in a practical, sensible way, with a clear plan. You won't be able to lose weight unless you change something about your lifestyle, and you'll have to eat less to accomplish that. It's all about finding the right balance. Nowhere is that more true than when it comes to food, as we don't recommend you fall for the food industry's bad habit of selling us unhealthy foods that are high in salt and sugar. Here are some ways you can make your weight loss more effective by changing your eating habits. Cut back on processed foods Processed food is high in salt, saturated fat and refined sugar. It contains lots of empty calories with little nutrition. You can eat more natural foods with fewer calories. You'll feel fuller for less food, and you'll lose weight. You can lose weight with a lot of different diets. There are plenty of books, articles, magazine articles and online resources out there that offer personal help. However, if you find yourself on a diet that doesn't work for you, don't be afraid to step away from it. You'll put your weight loss on a fast track if you cut back on processed foods and junk food. Your body doesn't need it. Don't buy processed foods We're not saying you shouldn't eat food. We're just saying that d0c515b9f4
