A: You are using a custom port. Try changing it to and test again. If your custom port is in use by another application on your computer, you'll need to close it. You can do this by going to the services control panel. If the service is in the list of services, right-click it, and select "stop". If it's not listed, you can start it by right-clicking it, and selecting "Start" (or "start up"). // THIS FILE IS GENERATED!

Q: Java code for converting a string into a date format I am converting a string into date using format "dd/mm/yyyy". I have written the following code which works fine as it is: String dt = "19/06/2015"; DateFormat df = new SimpleDateFormat("dd/MM/yyyy"); java.util.Date newDate = null; try { newDate = df.parse(dt); } catch (ParseException e) { e.printStackTrace(); } Is there a better way to do this? A: You can use java.time.LocalDate for the input and for the output String dt = "19/06/2015"; LocalDate localDate = LocalDate.parse(dt); System.out.println(localDate); The output is 2015-06-19 If you really need a java.util.Date, you could create it with your String Date date = new Date(dt); A: Yes, you can use the Calendar class with the set(Date) method. This will accept a String date. "yyyy-MM-dd" is the standard format string for date parsing. If you are using the standard class DateFormat
