News from different sources showing that the information can be changed. Password Protected Documents Keyboard Shortcuts. File Compression. FrontPage Editor.With the nomination of Judge Brett Kavanaugh in the Supreme Court vacancy, opponents of the nominee are pushing through the Senate a bare-minimum requirement that the FBI investigate Brett Kavanaugh's background to look for any evidence of sexual misconduct. The Senate is fully able to make that decision. The Senate Judiciary Committee only requires that the FBI make a formal determination that the Kavanaugh allegations are "not sufficient to merit" a full investigation. The FBI doesn't have to find proof of sexual misconduct to deny the allegations. Forget the fact that the Democrats pushed through these sham investigations for the last several nominees and three Supreme Court justices nominated by George W. Bush. They are still trying to use these shoddy tactics because they know they can't defeat Judge Kavanaugh without an investigation. Sen. Dianne Feinstein (D-CA) has been pushing this broken process for months. Feinstein wants to hear from "qualified professionals" and is pushing to admit anonymous testimony. She insists that there is no need for this unethical "fact-finding" process, but she has not suggested that she will testify to the committee about the accusations against Judge Kavanaugh. She has no evidence that Brett Kavanaugh engaged in any criminal activity. Feinstein's claim that she needs a "qualified professional" to investigate is a transparent lie. If she believed Kavanaugh had engaged in criminal activity or a sexual assault, she would have been willing to testify before the committee. The optics of a sitting senator keeping her alleged rapist confidential while the Republicans on the committee will let Kavanaugh on the court are terrible for the Democratic Party. They are encouraging women to come forward and be victimized by sexual assault. Democrats are pushing for an FBI investigation because they know the truth.
