Environmental professionals always think that more regulations mean better outcomes. But a recent study of a Boulder-area wastewater treatment plant that has been in operation since the 1950s has yielded some unexpected results. The 40-year-old plant (which treats roughly 0.5 million gallons of liquid per day) needs a larger filter to keep contaminants such as copper, iron, lead, cadmium and sulfates from showing up in its discharge. A pilot project last year saw the installation of a $275,000 filter on the incoming water. The team at the sewage treatment works (STW) even expects a reduction in the plant's runoff. "But we're not nearly finished," says Dave d0c515b9f4

Rating: 3.8/5 based on 15816 reviewsPhilippines' Duterte debates possible war on China Philippine President Rodrigo Duterte greets supporters in Binondo, Manila on Sunday, May 5, 2017. Duterte says during his visit to the historic district, the Philippines is open to other countries' input on its disputes in the South China Sea with China. (AP Photo/Bullit Marquez) MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Philippine President Rodrigo Duterte on Sunday defended the territorial claims of the Philippines against China, while saying he might be open to a "separate peace" with Beijing, a potential move away from the United States that would raise alarms in the U.S. and the West. Duterte has taken a confrontational approach to the South China Sea, defying China's claims that it has historically exercised control over a sea-lanes vital to world commerce. Duterte's comments on Sunday suggested he might be open to changing his stance. He said that the Philippines was ready to be a "separate peace," the president told around 2,000 cheering supporters in Manila. ADVERTISEMENT "The territorial issues between China and us have been resolved. We will not allow China Sea dispute, however. "To a certain extent I'm also helping China," he said. "Once again, how can I say that I'm being a traitor to a certain power, (as) President Barack Obama might have been interested in convening a binding arbitration." The future of U.S. military presence in the Philippines is at the heart of the
