Features Key:

High Level Features: Multiple users per group. All users in a group will reflect the change of a shared "vector" animation without the need to create a custom "trigger" animation. That is, the existing animation will be used as long as that's shared between users in the group. This makes creating "levels" or "layers" of "vector" animations a lot easier.

Anti-Malware Features: The game uses a proprietary algorithm that will automatically determine if the image being used contains malware by scanning it. If it does, the current encrypted image will be updated or deleted. The game will automatically determine when to update. This can save you from wasting time scanning images for viruses, since the game scans for them automatically.

Limitation: Minimum images are 200px height. We will need a better program. Perhaps one that creates each vector manually.

How to open and use the sharing button in the game window: To open the sharing window, click on the green "Mirror Drop" icon on the top left of the game window. From the opened sharing dialog. To share an image: Click on the drop down list at the bottom of the dialog. Then select the "Reveal specific image dialog." If you choose "Public," then anyone will be able to open the image. If you choose "Friends," only your friends will be able to open the image. Choose "Group" for this image to give it to the target group.

How to share a vector: The same drop down dialog will open when you click on the white arrow next to the mirror drop icon in the icon bar of the game window. You can then choose which vector to share (check box next to vector name) and group it (check box next to group name). Click on the green "Share selected" button.

Other possible uses of the sharing dialog: It can be used as follows:
1. Add a vector

, Spektr. 26.05.2018 It has been a while since I post something, but not because I haven't been making music! I have been making music, in fact, loads! As of late I have done a lot of experimenting with my own set of the RPG, Music and VFX computers. I will say this, in all of the music I've created the past couple of months I have the solution to all of the problems I face at the moment. I could talk about using the Sinclair 32, SID chip, or the Commodore 64, but I'm going to skip it. In my opinion, all of these involve the same exact horrible problems and solutions. Instead, I want to share the solutions to some of the problems I face. I will go into detail about how I can fix the problem, and what I use to do it. I will leave it as an exercise to the reader to adjust, change, or fix the problems. I picked my own set up with the technology that makes the most sense to me. Hopefully this will inspire others to realize that some of their own problems can be easily solved with a computer. Problem Solving A thing that I have noticed lately is that many of the machines I've plugged in so far, don't really output anything. Sound waves are just waves in the air. If I use the RGB out on my C64, camera out on my 32, or even the C64 and 32 out together, I end up with some kind of distorted picture. Let's say I have two screens plugged into my 32. I want to run a small C64 program that will do something crazy. It only runs for one frame, but it does something like open the monitor and then rotate it through all the possible angles. How would I do this? What do I do? Well, for one thing, I am going to use a software solution for monitoring. This is only possible because I have a pretty nice development tool that makes monitoring really easy to do. It's called Syphon: It allows me to select a camera then record as long as I want. The program will then generate a wave file for each frame in the video, with the correct time based on when the recording happened. A semi-sample of every single pixel in the image will then be present in the file
