Supreme Ruler: Cold War is a zenith product of the highest order.india Updated: Apr 10, 2019 20:43 IST The government has ordered an inquiry into the CBI investigation into the match-fixing and betting case of the 2016-17 Indian Premier League (IPL). The parliamentary panel is also looking into whether the investigative agency abused its powers in an attempt to influence the outcome of the proceedings in the case. The panel, headed by Congress member P S Gill, has handed over its report to the home ministry on the CBI's activities. The panel's findings have triggered a bitter political debate in the opposition Congress and the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP). The BJP has alleged that the government is trying to protect former IPL chief Lalit Modi, who is already serving a five-year jail term on money laundering charges. "Within four days of Modi's conviction, the home ministry sent a letter to the panel, 'giving a clean chit to the CBI' in the cricket betting and match-fixing case. The government's stance on Lalit Modi is under-question," said BJP's state unit president Vivek Tankha. On Tuesday, the Supreme Court refused to get involved in the criminal proceedings against Modi and the former board members of the IPL. According to legal experts, the court has no role in the investigation and trial of criminal offences, be it a case of cheating or murder. In the year 2016, the IPL was hit by scandal after the Indian cricket board filed a criminal complaint against Modi, his family members and the other IPL officials for alleged corruption. The board had alleged that Modi, his family, Sandeep Goenka and Shaharyar Khan had taken money in exchange for "upping the odds" on certain teams. None of the six accused filed an appeal in the Supreme Court. Later, all six were convicted by a special court in Delhi and sentenced to jail terms between two
