"Loader" by daz/ (Win .Evaluation of a high-protein infant formula in small bowel bacterial overgrowth and intestinal histology: a double-blind, crossover, placebo-controlled study. To assess the effect of a high-protein formula (HP) versus standard formula (SF) on small bowel bacterial overgrowth (SBBO) and intestinal histology in preterm infants with clinically indicated short bowel syndrome (SBS). Infants ≤ 30 days with midgut SBS were randomized in a double-blind manner to receive HP or SF for 3 weeks each in a cross-over study. Infants received either SF or HP at dosing initiation and were sequentially offered either SF or HP during the course of the study. Cultures of jejunal aspirates were obtained from dosing initiation to the end of each study period. Histologic analyses were performed on a subset of infants. Of 10 infants randomized, 7 completed the first study period and had cultures performed. Neither group demonstrated SBBO. Histologic analysis of intestine specimens showed no statistically significant difference in the frequency of ileal mucosal injury, villus length, villus
