Q: Do you need to report missing weapons? In the world of MH4U, there are some weapons that are marked as "missing". Do you need to report these missing weapons to the police, or is it better to let the game tell you when you pick them up? A: The weapons that aren't just tossed around in the world, are in the "loot" pile (located in the lower-left of the screen) -- when you enter a cover and want to loot the enemies, the bullets that are outside the target area will be there. So, what you report missing to the police is: You didn't find the weapon lying around, and You didn't find it (anymore). The police, upon reporting missing weapons, can still be looking for the items. But it says printer status is Job Status is Open In the printer setup menu I can add it but I cannot print from it nor see the printer under /dev/usb (wacky, I know). If I manually add it under /dev/usb (as in /dev/usb/lp0 or lp2) I get an error (probably because the driver is not installed). There is no network share nor any printers defined on the server. Any ideas? A: The printer is OK from the K-line standpoint, however it has to be told on which network-device to talk (b-line), and the printer needs to be told it's being used on which (network-device). The drivers and programs are correctly installed, because hplip is installed and the ubuntu driver is installed, too. The problem is a printer-logic-problem. The hplip-gui is unable to find the printer-logic for the detected device, and /usr
