Some features exclusive to the “HyperMotion” mode are Goalkeeper Vision, which allows players to sense the opposition’s ball movement and shadow patterns, situational AI that reacts realistically to the changing conditions of each match, and acceleration and endurance development. FIFA 20 featured an interactive, life-like motion analysis system called Player Impact Engine that allowed the game to offer natural and intuitive feedback for the player while building momentum or reacting to collisions. By comparing all of the movements of all of the players to the motions of the ball, for example, the game was able to offer more realistic interaction with the ball such as possession and knocking it down. An improved AI system also allowed AI players to more actively seek out opportunities in the game world. With the introduction of “HyperMotion Technology,” FIFA 22 will include a wider range of game options and an expanded list of match conditions. “I’m absolutely delighted with how this year’s FIFA has turned out, and with the way it combines two very important elements of the sport: the ball and the player,” said EA SPORTS FIFA Lead Producer Hugo Villa-Lobos. “The FIFA Team has always been an inspired one, and the love and attention to detail we’re seeing for this year’s games are an incredible validation of our work. I’m very happy to be able to share it with all of you.” FIFA 20 and FIFA Ultimate Team FIFA 20 and FIFA Ultimate Team are the most in-depth editions of the franchise with FIFA 20 coming exclusively to the Xbox One on October 27 and on PlayStation 4, PC, Nintendo Switch, and Stadia on October 19. The Ultimate Team players who have purchased the Ultimate Team packs for FIFA 19 will receive exclusive access to both FIFA 20 and FIFA Ultimate Team, including the ability to carry over custom team kits and play with their new teams in FIFA 20 beginning on October 27. FIFA 20 continues to offer you the chance to grow your Ultimate Team with new weekly card packs and FUT Drafts. Player progression systems remain untouched from FIFA 19, ensuring each player class can earn FIFA 20 Silver Lions and FIFA 20 Players Cards. This year, FIFA Ultimate Team also features real-life match data. Excluding packs, the stats players accumulate from matches will carry over to FIFA Ultimate Team, while FIFA 20 compiles a player profile that will link to your Ultimate Team.
