What happens when a 5 yr old Engineer, a 6 yr old Swimmer, a 5 yr old Artist, a 7 yr old Tennisplayer, a 6 yr old Guitarist, a 5 yr old Scientist, a 12 yr old Musician and a 3 yr old Poet decide to play in the same room. The result is the ENTIRE POSSIBLE REALITY. In reality we see that everyone has a title, but no one carries it for very long as soon as they discover they have a title they will move to find it and give it to someone else and so on until they are passed on to someone else and from there they move up the title and so on. Energy spectra and field evolution of magnetic impurities in a dense plasma: hard spheres. The energy spectrum of magnetic impurities in a plasma is studied and shown to be in good agreement with theoretical results for hard spheres using energy conservation laws. We show that the transverse component of the energy of the particles decays as a power law in time t with an exponent γ , which depends on the magnetic moment m of the particles and the spatial decay exponent ν . The energy of the longitudinal component is shown to be conserved at long times. The experimental values of the exponent are compared with results predicted by simple analytical models of impurities in a plasma and a good agreement is found. What's new:

, Urban Outfitters, The Republic The Vicious Attack Llama Apocalypse The thing about raw meat that makes it dangerous is that you don't know what it will do when it goes inside your digestive system. For some people, raw chicken kabobs have punched them in the gut and induced an intense case of food poisoning. Needless to say, it's very important to be aware of where that meat is coming from before you eat it. Ironically, though, the same thing is happening here as it is when you have a chicken kabob. The only difference is that folks who eat at Applebee's are paying homage to a computer code that has come down on us from the good old days when Netheads used computers the way one uses smart phones now: Macintosh. El Jefe Llama For all Applebee's customers, you probably know that there is a famous Gillette commercial in which the salesman is getting a shave at a barber shop. He's blowing his nose, only to get another sneezing attack and frantically reach for an aerosol pack, which, of course, is not there. The barber notices the plight of the Gillette salesman and politely tells him that without the nasal spray, his life would be miserable. Without the description of the Gillette addict, a place that offers a great meal and drinks for a cost, it wouldn't make sense to describe the relationship as that of a Gillette fan to the company. But the barber knew exactly what was going on. Here's what was going on: Applebee's is swallowing a tiny bit more of your money than the barber, but in an effort to be like the barber, not the Gillette man, El Jefe is lending them his brand of nasal spray. El Jefe, as you no doubt have guessed, is a lama. To Applebee's customers, he will serve as a proxy for them. He'll pretend to be the barber, even though his nose is a whole lot longer. Meanwhile, the company pays him in other ways. He knows it, and he's totally cool with it. First, the lamas receive pay for every dollar that a customer spends at the Applebee's. At the restaurant, on their bill, they'll receive $4.99 per dollar. In their menus
