Angelica Thomassin Angelica Thomassin (born Angelique Courbeil, 5 February 1965) is a French presenter for a television programme about cooking and lifestyle. She is a celebrity chef, as well as being a political and environmental activist. She is the founder of an international network of food and cooking schools (the Angelica network) and the author of a cookery book titled Les 101 recettes de l'Amour. She was named Europe's Woman of the Year in 2009. Biography Angelica Courbeil was born on 5 February 1965 in Port-au-Prince, Haiti. She was very young when she was adopted by a French family in Brussels in 1975. When she was 11, Angelica left her teenage life to go on to study at the Hospital des Enfants in Brussels, taking the pseudonym Angelica Thomassin until she returned to her adoptive parents. Since 1992, she has worked for various Belgian TV channels in the fields of news, fashion, history, and cooking, including Europe 1, NPO 3, Victoria TV, France 3, and La Une. Angelica is married to the artist Laurent Thomassin, and they have a son, Joseph, born in 2005. Angelica teaches French cooking and has her own philosophy on cooking: "If I cook badly, my relationship with food is the same. I hate the fact that it's bad, and I'm unhappy."
