The improved understanding of player movements is directly translated into AI that delivers a more realistic behaviour. For example, the improved ball-striking and dribbling AI allows players to create more realistic attacks on goal with the ball, while the accelerated ball speed in high intensity situations allows players to run faster with the ball. EA SPORTS FIFA 20 introduces a new dribble mechanics that add even more realism, incorporating the general movement of the player as well as the turn of the body. Players can also take more shots on goal, split defenders and head the ball towards their teammates. “ We’ve listened to fans’ feedback on FIFA and have been inspired by this incredible movement from the players. The game now allows players to move with more fluidity on the pitch and with more awareness when tackling. The addition of Goalkeeper Sprint and Defensive Acceleration to the EX Moves allows users to make more strategic decisions on the pitch and create situations where a goalkeeper must react faster. We’ve also brought more intensity and variety to how players move when they are playing with the ball, with new mechanics that improve movement speed in the air, on the ground and in tight spaces. ” – Michael Petri, Executive Producer, EA SPORTS

Our goalkeepers at FIFA 20 continue to cut out lots of crucial passes during matches. They focus more on closing down the ball and cutting out dangerous passing lanes. They are still called upon to execute tactics and challenge plays that are supported by the new Goalkeeper Sprint. ” – Michael Petri, Executive Producer, EA SPORTS
