In this model, I have a one-to-many relationship to a model called categories. Model categories: class Category extends AppModel { var $belongsTo = array('User', 'CategoryGroup'); } Model user: class User extends AppModel { var $hasMany = array('Categories', 'Category'); var $actsAs = array('Categories'); } When I delete a user, all the categories associated with that user are deleted with it. The problem is, the categories still have the url to the deleted user as a parent. For example: user 127.0.0.1:8080/categories/test When I try to access this url, I get a 404 error. It won't actually show the categories page for the user who just deleted themselves. Is there a way to fix this? Would I need to use the relatedTo method in my controller when removing a user? A: Use this in your controller $this->User->delete($id); [Prevalence and distribution of Blastocystis hominis in patients with various clinical symptoms].
