I can't imagine a world with Hillary Clinton," said Lindsey Graham as he praised the Republican Senate leader. | Getty Graham: I can't imagine world without McCain Sen. Lindsey Graham on Sunday dismissed the idea that Sen. John McCain's being treated for brain cancer might prevent the Arizona Republican from serving out his term. "I can't imagine a world without John McCain. I can't imagine a world with Hillary Clinton," said Graham, the South Carolina Republican who is close to McCain. "I'll be around to watch John's recovery, but as Sen. McCain goes, so goes the Republican Party, so goes the Senate, so goes the country." McCain returned to the Senate on Tuesday after undergoing surgery and recovering. His condition is stable, aides said, and "the senator is receiving the same standard care he would were he in Washington," according to Politico. McCain's absence has sparked a number of prominent GOP figures, including a whole chunk of the influential "Never Trump" movement, to try to convince Trump not to pick up the phone. "We've been telling him, your criticism of Sen. McCain is not out of bounds as it relates to Sen. McCain's service to this country," Texas Sen. Ted Cruz said Sunday on CNN's "State of the Union," referring to the fact that Trump made the criticism during an interview with Fox News last week. "If you don't think that Sen. McCain should be treated with respect, and if you don't think that Sen. McCain should be treated with the dignity and the respect that we owe all of our senior citizens
