invention relates to the field of molecular biology. More particularly, it provides new genes and proteins relating to new E. coli strains.
Enterobacteriaceae strains are an important part of the human microbial flora. Enterobacteriaceae are Gram-negative and obligate anaerobic bacteria which form part of the normal colonic microflora.
Enterobacteriaceae strains are important members of the Enterobacteriaceae family. Different enterobacterial strains display different colonization patterns. The human gut is known to be colonized by enterobacterial strains belonging to the following seven species: E. coli, Enterobacter cloacae, Klebsiella pneumoniae, Citrobacter koseri, Serratia liquefaciens, Serratia marcescens and Proteus vulgaris. The Enterobacteriaceae family is also characterized by a common association with Gram-negative bacillary sepsis and urinary tract infections. Enteric fever, a disease associated with enterobacterial infection of the blood, is caused by E. coli and Salmonella species. It is characterized by nausea, fever, aseptic meningitis, leukocytosis, and by the formation of an acute infection. More than 500,000 cases of invasive Enterobacteriaceae infections, including meningitis, septicemia, and enteritis, are reported every year. It is estimated that 20-40% of these are potentially fatal. In the US, Salmonella infections are responsible for over 800 deaths each year. The annual cost of salmonellosis in the US is $2.3 billion. Enterotoxigenic E. coli is a collection of intestinal pathogens of man and 0cc13bf012

Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a liquid crystal display (LCD), and more particularly to an LCD in which a liquid crystal layer is formed between a pixel electrode and an opposing common electrode while having a transparent substrate, a pixel electrode, a pixel defining layer covering the entire periphery of the pixel electrode, a pixel electrode wiring formed in the pixel defining layer and an insulating layer between the pixel electrode and the pixel defining layer are formed on the transparent substrate. 2. Description of the Related Art In general, a LCD is a representative flat panel display device for displaying an image. The LCD is also used for displaying an electronic device, such as a mobile phone, a personal digital assistant (PDA), and a digital camera. In particular, the LCD is widely applied to a mobile phone because a small-sized and light-weight device is possible. The LCD includes a color filter substrate, an array substrate and a liquid crystal layer. The color filter substrate includes a color filter for displaying the colors of red (R), green (G), and blue (B) formed in a certain pattern, a black matrix for preventing light leakage, and a transparent common electrode for applying a voltage to the liquid crystal layer. The array substrate includes a plurality of pixels arranged in a matrix array and a plurality of thin film transistors for switching the respective pixels. Each of the thin film transistors is connected to a gate line for receiving a gate signal and a data line for receiving a data signal. The gate lines and the data lines are formed on the same substrate. The array substrate is formed on a color filter substrate by a thin film deposition technique such as a vacuum deposition technique or a sputtering process. The transmittance of light of each pixel can be controlled by adjusting a magnitude of the voltage applied to the common electrode.
