The rule of law in the Lands Between: Elden Ring. The Elden Ring's existence has brought forth a world where people live in peace, and their daily lives are an example of the beauty of life. How long can they continue this way? The entire world was trembling. Even if it lasted only a single day, a terrible fear had gripped the world. The scale of the war to be unleashed by the Elden Ring would send its citizens into a frenzy. The Emperor's majesty, ruler of the Lands Between: Pheone. One afternoon, the Emperor of the Lands Between: Pheone took a stroll through his garden at his castle in Erytheia. It was a beautiful, tranquil garden with bougainvillea and camellias. There was an artificial lake in the center, and the surrounding area was filled with various types of flowers. The Emperor, a man of 59 years of age, was walking side by side with his wife, Emosvra, who was 55 years old. There are children in the Elden Ring. One day, you might see them. One day, you might meet them. One day, they might meet you. The Emperor and the Empress took a look at the sun, which was now slowly setting in the west. It was the day they had been awaiting for several years. The day their beloved daughter Emera would finally be married to the boy of their dreams. A girl child would be born to their beloved daughter's future husband and the Emperor's beloved wife. They were about to be joined together once again by the bonds of the Elden Ring, the Elden's Infinity Ring, that would keep the Lands Between's balance and security. The Emperor was a wise man, and so he was pondering on the meaning of the scene. He thought about his three children: his beloved

Boeing's F-15 Silent Eagle, Lockheed Martin's F-16 Fighting Falcon and the Eurofighter Typhoon will all be brought back for another round of competition, following the British Air Ministry's announcement that the RAF would add five more jets to its order. Contenders for the last batch of six new aircraft — also known as Block 60+2 — is expected to be whittled down to just two, with a decision likely made by the end of 2017. The Air Force said in a statement it had selected the Boeing F-15 Silent Eagle as a short-term replacement for its ageing fleet of aging F-15C/D/E and F-16D/E aircraft. The short-term replacement of the F-16 fleet will be essential for the US air force as it prepares for the retirement of its Lockheed Martin F-22A Raptor fleet. While announcing the decision, a Department of Defence spokesperson said: "The F-15 Silent Eagle represents a modern, agile, and deadly airplane that provides the United States Air Force with a lethal air-to-air, and air-to-ground capability." All the five other contenders are also American fighters, including the Northrop Grumman F-35A, built as a single-seat prototype. Survey: 39.1% of unemployed EU citizens plan to return to their home country The latest Eurobarometer report on the European Union shows that 55% of all EU citizens surveyed plan to go back to their home country within the next 12 months, up from 48% 12 months ago. The most popular countries where people are planning to return are those in the Eastern and Central parts of Europe as well as Northern Europe, but the lowest percentage is in the Eastern part of the EU. The planned returns are significantly higher in the Southern and Eastern parts of the EU compared to the Western and Central regions, especially amongst the younger age groups. In some countries, such as Italy (65%), Slovenia (58%) and Austria (56%), between half and three-quarters of all respondents plan to return at some point to their home countries. Nevertheless, other countries outside of the geographical regions with a higher number of anticipated returns, such as France (44%), Spain (31%) and Portugal (28%), also present relatively low numbers of planned returns. The only exception to this is Belgium, where more than half of all respondents plan to return.
