I am using Oracle SQL Developer and as part of a PL/SQL script, I want to generate INSERT statements and UPDATE statements. My requirement is to generate the INSERT statements as INSERT_1 for 10% of the objects, INSERT_2 for another 10% of the objects, and so on. At the end of the script I want to have a list of objects with the relevant INSERT and UPDATE statements. Is there a simple way to do this without having to loop through the entire list? So, for example, if I have the following table: Object_id, name, data1, data2 1 , m1 , 12 , 23 2 , m2 , 43 , 56 3 , m3 , 54 , 71 4 , m4 , 43 , 78 My generated INSERT statement would be: INSERT INTO table

Still doesn't get it Why does this game have a poor rating? Did no one finish the game? The game is great. The game is awesome. You don't like it? Well, fine. You don't know anything. Shouldn't be wondering if this is good or not when you don't know anything about the game. You might as well say the game's not good because you didn't like it. If you try it, you'll like it You are supposed to like this game. This is a good game. This is a really good game. Fun but sometimes hard! I'm actually giving it a really low score, because while it is quite fun, it can be a bit hard at times. Having a sword with very low durability doesn't matter when you can just buy more weapons through the economy. But the game has a lot of things in common with traditional RPGs, like death and loss of experience, even though this game lacks those conveniences. The amount of content is impressive The game has a huge amount of content for a free-to-play game. The size of the world is huge and there are a lot of side quests, random items, and playable NPC characters. On top of all that, you can unlock most of the items by simply leveling up and buying them with gold, without needing to play through the main story. It's really addictive And if you give yourself enough time to do everything, the game will keep you occupied for hours. My favorite part is winning the duel after a long time of playing. A lot of players did not enjoy the game and should have provided a better reason Why should people who did not enjoy this game bother providing a review? If you don't like this game, why should anyone listen to your opinion, even if you provided a review? At least know what it is that you didn't like. No review I have to give my point of view on this game. This game is terrible on my end. I don't understand what the developers tried to do and why they were trying to put a game like this on the market. Even if there is a lot of people that like it, not everyone may like this game. Everyone is different. The quality of the game was above average, so don't feel bad for me Quality of the game was average. It was above average but not exceptional. I didn't appreciate it much due to the glitches and such. bff6bb2d33
