This is not surprising because 80% of the world's income is concentrated in a small share of the population. Furthermore, the US ranks first in the world in corporate profit share and highest incarceration rates. The main goals of this book are: 1. To show that the ideas of "prison abolition" and "abundance" can be combined to provide strategic directions for both correctional and economic policy. This is to say that we will apply the Abundance Anarchism methodology of reaching abundance and ending scarcity to both public and private economies. 2. To provide a strategic road map for prison abolition to be put into effect, using the systems that already exist in cities and towns worldwide that have anti-poverty or economic development agendas. 3. To show that the alternative value-system of "justice, equality, healing, cooperation, collective power, collective intelligence, nonviolence and love" can provide the e79caf774b
