I was in a location where I had to be running off charge I had not been able to get battery power for the device, and had to download it from the AOC website. It's a hassle, but nothing that couldn't be avoided in a different time and place. The download was fairly easy once I did it, but there were a few different windows of download. The first one was to the drivers, the second to the source of the program that installed them, and the third was the file that contained the drivers. Most likely they are trying to do everything on that monitor so that if you don't have that monitor you don't need to do all that work and install it on the VB. I'm not seeing a way to send the device off to get fixed, so since it's for a family member I'm going to send it off to have it fixed, as long as it is somewhat straightforward.
