The announced subject imports, which relate to final investigative determinations following the Trump administration’s recent Section 301 investigations and countervailing and anti-dumping investigations conducted in response to earlier anti-China trade actions against the US and China, cover $3.1 billion of total annual imports, and represent the largest class of import investigations that the ITC has completed to date. Almost all of the subject imports covered by the investigations are subject to either claims and/or suits under the Trump administration’s Section 301 tariff retaliation policy. Following a process for import exclusionary orders first developed during the Obama administration in 2008, the ITC has now also issued a series of exclusion orders in response to the import entries described above, covering $6.7 billion of total annual imports from China, nearly all of which are
