Red Hat 3.1.1 201203111525.. 3.1.1.. 'chimeraTool' in the same language as you are viewing it: This is a must for almost all translators using ChimeraTools. chipper 1.2.1 If you have software to translate C source code to whatever language you use, you should make a copy of the tool and call it 'chipper'.

Q: Disable HiDPI scaling on an activity By default, the system applies HiDPI scaling to all applications that are launched on Android 5.0 (or higher) devices. The way I understood it, is that one of the following methods gets called: onCreate() onWindowFocusChanged() onWindowVisibilityChanged() But I am unable to implement any of these in a way that prevents scaling from happening. All of them seem to be invoked correctly, but scaling is still applied.

A: The accepted solution will not work if the app uses any of these parameters: minWidthDp (in pixels) minHeightDp (in pixels) maxWidthDp (in pixels) maxHeightDp (in pixels) windowSoftInputMode(int windowSoftInputMode)

EDIT: After further research, it was determined that this is a bug in the Android SDK.

A: The problem has been patched in the latest Google repository on their servers. For now you can use the following fix. Launch the dev branch of Google repository Remote through the shell to the bin/ directory and replace the file on the server side (ie: bin/classes2.jar) Connect your eclipse with the same directory of the server (ie: /home/user/android-sdks/android-18/sources/android-18.jar) Go to /Sdk/ndk/add-ons/libraries/platforms/android-18/src/main/java/android/app/Activity.java Search for this line and add the following.
