We believe this approach is faithful to the language of § 362(b)(4). 19 We note that the Ninth Circuit takes the position that §§ 362(b)(4) and 362(a)(6) should be interpreted independently. Amalgamated Insurance Fund v. McFarlin's, Inc., 789 F.2d 1441, 1450 (9th Cir.1986). The statutory language is, however, clearly written in the conjunctive, thus rendering the two sections incapable of such an interpretation. In addition, this method of review seems to us to deprive § 362(b)(4) of its vitality. Without the cross reference, if any, between § 362(b)(4) and § 362(a)(6), § 362(b)(4) would not have the coercive effect that we believe it is intended to have. In the present case, the "pass on" issue and the § 362(a)(6) issue are related: the customers holding the § 362(a)(6) violation are those customers who requested prepayment; and those customers who received prepayments during the 90-day period have by definition sustained greater losses because their losses are higher than they would have been absent such prepayments. We therefore conclude that the appropriate way to determine whether a § 362
