Alignment is one of the most pivotal aspects of playing a Diablo 3 character. Because of its nature, Diablo 2 is forced to the right of the menu. You must be mindful that the devil is your friend. The devil gives you amazing powerful skills and potions but they are dangerous. Many people have learned to abuse the devil in many ways, but be careful! Always try to use them on your own self! If your devil wants to hurt you then you will be lost to the battle. A lot of people come from the Diablo 2 era, and so many of the skills in Diablo 3 are just heavily CORized, some even are CORized on multiple levels. As mentioned above, use them to your advantage. For example, the final move of the rightwards Blink Diablo 3 skill is a laser strike. Instead of going all the way over to the diagonal, you can Blink over to the top middle. If you do this, you will go all the way across to the diagonal, and you should blink over again, going all the way to the far top right corner. If you dont go all the way down and get a large moving strike, it is not really much use. It will strike, but half the damage and it will not keep you alive. But if you do go all the way down, it will be a much bigger hit. So you must choose when to use it. Because of Diablo 3s limitation of having only six primary attributes, new skills are made up of combinations of multiple stats. Thus, it is possible to create a powerful combination of your skills using the different types of meta-attributes or skills. Rather than a pure attribute skill, which provides little advantage, it is possible to create a composite attrib skill, which provides a lot of advantage. In this way, you can pick up the game as a pure attribute builder, giving you an edge when entering PvP matches.
