on windows.. notes. installation and tuning windows. installation. following the downloads and preparing of. to install mamp pro on the command line. navigate to. first, install java, and extract the installer for java runtime environment (jre) 7 (latest version, not the java se version - see java se downloads link at the bottom of this page), to install java on macos. download php locally (windows) php 5.4.37 this is the version we will be using to install mamp pro.. even on windows you can download php from php website. follow download instructions. now php is installed on your local pc., open command prompt by right click on 'cmd' icon on your desktop. open command prompt. it's a good practice to be able to run php files from a bash command line, which means that you can put your php scripts to a folder and just type the path to that folder from the command line to start running the script. it's a good thing to know how to do this, since many times you may need to create a script that runs automatically or has to run from a command line. the fileupload.php script should be found in the following location: c:\extras\machform_4.5. if you want to change the location of the file, edit the value passed into the fileupload script by changing the fileuploadscript argument in the copy_files_to variable. once you have set the copy_files_to variable, restart your computer. if you are using windows based ftp client to upload the files, such as smartftp or cuteftp or filezilla you can simply right click to the folder and choose the chmod command and set the permission to writable. otherwise, use the linux chmod command.
