Processor: Intel(R) Celeron(R) processor 1.60GHz, Application: Nvidia: Driver version 12.2.2 Win32. The most complete and comprehensive driver library on the Internet - find a driver for your product quickly and easily. I found some others that I could have downloaded to update my driver but the two listed drivers above my device ID seem to work the best for mine. Additionally, you can also find a comprehensive list of supported devices. I updated the driver HP Webcam driver through the Device Manager, just to tell me that I had the latest. I was able to find all the drivers but audio and video. I have copied and pasted the HWID any.Re: Menu click not working on Mac OS X (High Sierra) Hey! While I am a firestarter for mac os x, my idea is that you don't really need one. Only to prevent an unwanted launch of the contents of the attached zip archive. I have added an option to "Arrogant" as you suggested. If you open the "Safe Boot" dialog and now choose the file "Startup Password Protected", the boot will only start when you have given the right password, the next you will login into your personal mac desktop. You can always remove the password to use the Mac OS system without any further restrictions. If you are interested in a detailed description with lots of photos, just ask. Menu click not working on Mac OS X (High Sierra) I've seen this issue before and the suggestion I got was to delete the system preferences folder by running this command: `rm -r ~/Library/Preferences` That didn't work either. I'm using OS X 10.13.6 Is it possible for you to walk me through this process so that it works? I'm so frustrated at this point that I'd rather keep this computer for now. Re: Menu click not working on Mac OS X (High Sierra) The reason for the above was that this file was overwritten: `/Users/[Your_Username]/Library/Preferences/com.apple.windowserver.plist` You could just remove this file manually and it would work again. Re: Menu click not working on Mac OS X (High Sierra) So while this thread is from one year ago, i thought i would give this a try as it seemed to have worked before. Nothing really changed in my situation, same issue. So i used your steps and even deleted the folder mentioned above, so to speak, as the folder was empty: `rm -r ~/Library/Preferences/com.apple.windowserver.plist` Now when i try to launch the computer, it gives me a window that states it could not find the bundle. I have done everything you said and even went so far as to try sierra, but nothing. Re: Menu click not working on Mac OS X (High Sierra) If this is still the issue, maybe it helps, but maybe not. But anyway, I edited an older version of that file and I now see this (in order of appearance): 4 lines of text, 6 lines of text, some links to documents or text files, then a ">" which should have ended the info. But if you follow the ">" to where it states that it's still there, you see that the path to this file is: Re: Menu click not working on Mac OS X (High Sierra) Following will go through a video tutorial.
