I want to check for null values only. If null, set to empty string. Currently I am checking if it is null at run time by calling getProperty() and then converting it to String. if (property!= null) { String value = (String) property.getValue(); } else { String value = ""; } Is there any way to test this value(property) at run time? A: You should use something like: String value = (String) property.getValue(); if(value!= null && value.equals("")) {
